Exciting News!

The Canadian National Autism Foundation has exciting news to share! Two of the research studies that we have funded over the past 3 years have been in the news around the world! The "Autism Genome Project" by Dr. Peter Szatmari, Dr. Stephen Scherer and many others, as well as the "Early Detection of Autism" by Dr. Mel Rutherford at Hamilton's McMaster University are receiving worldwide acclaim for their preliminary findings. We look forward to being able to share more of their results as they become available!

Ask the Expert

This is your time to actually be in a study that has made medical breakthroughs and ask questions of the professionals.

The Rutherford Lab invites you to take part in

The Sticker Study

We are studying verbal 4-7 year olds with autism to see how they solve problems!

- Each child will work with the experimenters to make a picture with stickers.
- The child is given simple instructions and a problem to solve.
- Each child is paid for participating.

Ultimately we want to see how children differ in their problem solving skills.

Please help us by taking part!

Interesting Information

This year the Canadian National Autism Foundation has disbursed funds to:

- 1) The Autism Treatment Network (ATN) led by Dr. Wendy Roberts co-director of the Autism Research Unit at Sick Kids Toronto ~ $3,000.00 (Toronto will become the first Canadian ATN site)
- 2) The Autism Genome Project with Dr. Stephen Scherer of Toronto's Sick Kids ~ $5,000.00
- 3) Dr. David Nicholas of The Hospital for Sick Kids Toronto with the research study "Roles and Experiences Of Mothers & Fathers of Children with Autism ~ $7,000.00
- 4) Dr. Mel Rutherford from Hamilton's McMaster University for continuation of the Early Autism Study ~ $5,000.00

This is an email from a father from the UK that would like some help from Fathers of children with Autism.

To whom it may concern

May I introduce myself; my name is Neil and I am the father of a six-year-old daughter with Autistic Spectrum Disorder. I am in the process of writing about her but not through the usual narrative of how my family has coped with her condition or offering any academic, scientific solutions.

Instead, I want to make contact with other fathers whose offspring are Autistic, to write letters based on the premise, "If I had a magic wand, I would ... " and put them together in book form.

I have sent out a proposal to several book publishers, with this idea and am awaiting their response, and have the backing of The National Autistic Society, the Kent Autistic Trust, Dr. Paul Shattock OBE and one of leading experts in the field, Tony Attwood (his enthusiastic PA, at least!).

The letters can be honest, explaining you'll never change the child; they can be frank, wanting to alter only some parts or all parts, contain humorous anecdotes, doodles, poems, scribbles, anything that another father might relate to, to garner inspiration and a small nugget of relief. Or, even show the wishes of the child. Fathers come across as having very little escape from the rigours of caring for disabled children.

As Autism does not only affect laymen, I will be doing my utmost to contact male celebrities and anyone, financially successful, whose money and privilege do not prevent them experiencing the same problems as other fathers.

Some of the proceeds for the book are earmarked for The Kent Autistic Trust and The Fathers Club in Kent, a group offering advice to fathers of Autistic children.

Yours truly,
Neil Weston

How You Can Help

As a charitable organization, the Canadian National Autism Foundation strives to raise funds to achieve our goals and it is with the support of generous organizations, companies and people that we are able to put together fundraising events such as those we have had in the past in order to raise the funding needed.

At this time we are looking for financial support, and this can come in various forms:

- Sponsorship of portions of our events
- Donations of prizes for our events
- Purchase of tickets to our events
- Financial contributions directly towards our goals (i.e. research)
- Hold an Autism Awareness Day at your establishment
- Casual Dress Days
- Payroll Deductions
- Host a Golf Tournament or Hockey Tournament
- Sponsor or run a Walk-a-thon
- And any other great ideas that you may have, big or small!
