AUTISM RISK & SAFETY TRAINING FOR LAW ENFORCEMENT, PUBLIC SAFETY & CRIMINAL JUSTICE PROFESSIONALS

1

Law enforcement professionals may unexpectedly encounter or be asked to find a person with autism. Recognizing the behavior symptoms and knowing contact approaches can minimize situations of risk—risk or victimization of the person with autism, and risk to the officer. You may learn the person has autism from dispatch, family member or someone at the scene, or the person himself or herself.

2

Children and adults with autism now live, work, go to school and recreate in the community. Law enforcement professionals will have field interactions with children and adults with autism, their parents and care providers. Autism Recognition, Response and Risk Management training sessions are designed help officers make these interactions safer, less stressful, and more informed.

3

Autism recognition, response and risk management training sessions will help law enforcement, fire-rescue and emergency medical response, and criminal/juvenile justice professionals recognize the behavioral symptoms and characteristics of a child or adult who has autism, learn basic response techniques, learn about the high risks associated with autism, and will offer suggestions, options and specialized tactics about how to address those risks, increase officer and citizen safety, and avoid litigation. The training can be tailored to meet the needs of local communities and agencies.
