Nelvana

In the cold lands of Antarctica, there lived a polar bear
Who's life was too dull and despicable to care.
Every night he stands alone wondering way up high,
...Thinking of a new place while stars hung in the sky.
The polar bear asked Boreas for advice;
The North Wind didn't remind him twice.
"If you see a shooting star tonight, make a wish and it will come true."
"But" warned Boreas "be careful what you wish for too."
But Boreas had a nasty trick up his sleeve,
Since a polar bear came to him for need.
That night, the polar bear stood watch for a shooting star.
He said to himself "Where can it be? Where you are?"
The night was long and this started to suck;
Just then, a star appeared; there came his luck.
When the polar bear wished with wide eyes,
Boreas blew a terrible storm to his surprise.
Boreas sent the bear floating into outer space.
The polar bear caught up with the star in place.
He wished to be famous; but nothing happened.
He swallowed the star whole and something happened.
His whole body started to shine.
He shouldn't have listened to Boreas in mind.

So it was that a polar bear became the logo for a 1971 Canadian Animation studio called Nelvana.
The logo featured a polar bear looking up at seven stars and the Seven stars are over him like a rainbow so bright.

The studio is called Nelvana.
Named after the comic book heroine, Nelvana of The Northern Lights.
